Welcome

Celebrating 14 years of intense creativity, the Hong Kong New Music Ensemble's season 2021/22 opening concert Hong Kong Monograph showcases some of the ensemble's most significant commissions and premieres, presenting a snapshot of Hong Kong's contemporary music in the past decade. This concert will be recorded and broadcast in 2022 by the RTHK.

The title of the concert comes from HKNME's recording series of the same name. Launched in 2020 amidst the COVID-19 pandemic, the series is a platform to showcase internationally the network of creative talents from the region, with further releases planned in 2022 and beyond.

The HKNME's 2021/22 season theme OUT:reach. Our vision for "outreach" goes far beyond the conventional sense of the word:

- OUT: working outside conventional performance spaces / outside our existing circle of collaborators
- reach: reaching our community in new ways

We start this season retrospectively in a venue new to us, the wonderful Lee Hysan Concert Hall. The concert features works by nine composers - eight from Hong Kong and one from Taiwan - some of which were commissioned by HKNME, premiered by the ensemble in the past, or chosen through our 2020 Call for Scores. It is a diverse, eclectic collection of significant medium-sized ensemble works and delightful duos.

HKNME first worked with Chan Hing-yan back in 2009 but his Sonic Affairs is the first actual commission from the Ensemble, whose Hong Kong premiere was thwarted back in 2008 due to Typhoon Mangkhut. Charles Kwong and Angus Lee have worked at various times in the programming department of HKNME and whose works have received numerous premieres by our group around the world. Long-time collaborator Daniel Lo wrote Poids for performances in Hong Kong, Taiwan and South Korea; indeed, we are always looking for opportunities to program new works multiple times! This pandemic has taught us that taking time to reconnect is so important, and we are delighted to reunite with Chan Kai-yung and Phoebus Lee after many years. Last but not least, we present the work of Lin Wei-chieh (Taiwan) in Hong Kong for the first time, bringing a conclusion to an important Taiwan-HK composer exchange program set in motion in 2019 between the HKNME, Studio Acht (Taiwan) and the West Kowloon Cultural District Authority.

Thank you for coming to our concert tonight. Stay tuned for many exciting events coming up in our 2021/22 calendar, including a mini closing festival May 16-22 2022 at HK Cultural Centre Studio Theatre, which will feature many new works by a new group of creators. Thank you.

PROGRAMME NOTES

CHAN Hing-yan: Sonic Affairs (2018) | Notes by the composer

Sonic Affairs – for sheng & chamber ensemble

- I. Quickness
- II. Lightness
- III. Exactitude
- IV. Multiplicity

Sonic Affairs is commissioned by the Hong Kong New Music Ensemble for its 2018/19 open-season concert. The four-character Chinese title of Sonic Affairs is an idiom, and is a metaphor of the act of romantic dalliance: fenghua xueyue “flower in the breeze, snow under the moon.” Yet the work is not programmatic in any sense to portray dissipated affairs. Rather, the four Chinese characters each combines with another character to form a poetic subtitle that limits my compositional choices for each movement: zhufeng (the wind chase), yibua (flowers in dew), aoxue (defying snow), and tiyue (warbling under the moon). The resulting score is a four-part sonic palette of distinctive musical gestures, whose characteristics are defined by their respective English subtitles.

This work was commissioned by the HKNME with sponsorship from the CASH Music Fund in 2018.

CHAN Kai-young: Echoes of the Autumn Night (2018) | Notes by the composer

Autumn Night by Du Mu (translated by the composer)

Silver candle, autumnal glow, a chilling painted screen.
With a small round fan of light silk gauze, she fans the flitting fireflies
On the palace steps descends the night cool as water.
Laying down, she gazes at the Cowherd and the Weaving Lady stars.

Echoes of the Autumn Night draws its pitch materials and structure from the poem Autumn Night by Tang Dynasty poet Du Mu. He expressed with his poem the loneliness of a palace servant whose fan lost its purpose as autumn arrived – an allusion to the waning influence of the poet’s family in the imperial court. Also featured in the poem were the stars of the Cowherd and the Weaving Lady, a legend about two separated lovers who can only meet once a year.

The poetic imageries of starlight and glimmering fireflies tracks inspired the shimmery timbre of the harmonic trills featured throughout the piece, which at times hint at the theme pointillistically, and at other times recede to the background as accompaniment to the lyrical and expressive lines drawn from the tonal contour of the poem. The two violins often exchange roles and echo each other's materials, and there are also climactic moments where the two work together as a single entity.

This work is commissioned by violinist Patrick Yim.

LIN Wei-chieh: OM (2016; rev. 2017 / 2020) | Notes by the composer

Set in an imaginary large space, as if in a temple of an old civilization, six performers, each with their own unique characteristic and sensibility, begin to breathe, hum, pray, and sing. At first, it is not clear what they say or what they mean, something that is completely foreign and incomprehensible, yet immediately recognizable as primal expressions from deep within.

The use of these six instruments has been reduced to their essential elements, where one almost disappears into another, as the perception of these sounds becomes the extension of the bodies of the performers.

OM is a ritual of sound, a ritual of celebration from the smallest vibration to the complex sonorities of sound, which can only be experienced and revealed over time. OM is scored for bass flute, bass clarinet, violin, viola, violoncello and piano. It is written for Ensemble BlauerReiter and its conductor, Armando Merino.

Daniel LO: Poids (2019; rev. 2021) | Notes by the composer

This piece was inspired by an artwork bearing the same title (Poids 1933) by the French artist Louise Bourgeois. I was deeply impressed when I saw this installation at an exhibition (A Woman Without Secrets) in Edinburgh's National Galleries of Scotland a few years ago.

Poids refer to 'weight' in French. The base of the installation is made up of a mass of metal rods. It is connected to a long, thin, curving rod that rises to a height of about 2 meters above ground. Attached to the end of said curving rod are a cloud of shiny, feather-like decorations. In addition, there are two blue glass balls hanging from the same end.

This huge exhibit looks simple enough but it provides a stunning picture of delicate balance that is extremely fragile. I was told that the whole structure would collapse, with just one metal rod removed from the base. The weight of the base safeguards against collapse and consequent damage to the delicate decorations hanging from the curving rod. Fragility has weight.

Fragility and delicate balance emerge as the two major musical ideas in this work. There are occasional sections in which the instruments are made to play different tempi, creating a space where time seems to remain static. This is what I actually felt as I stood musing on the huge exhibit of Poids.

Charles KWONG: Staring (into that everchanging blue) (2018) | Notes by the composer

Staring (into that everchanging blue) is my reflection on the sea that I see everyday from the window of my house in Pengchau, a small island of Hong Kong that I have been living on since a few years ago. The seeming static yet totally unpredictable and ever-changing colours and texture of this view of the sea inspires the soundscape of this work.

In writing this work, I imagine myself ‘melting’ the eight instruments and molding them into a peculiar and organic sounding creature, or a non-existent mega-instrument, which breathes out ever-changing colours and sounds that are analogical to the sea.

Phoebus LEE: Snow at Night (2018) | Notes by the composer

Snow at Night was written during the traumatic periods in Hong Kong, when the composer was born. Drawing inspiration from the vista depicted by an ancient Chinese poet, the expressive recitative of the viola supported by the atmospheric piano accompaniment narrates a moody state of sentimentality, and it echoes the resonance of indignation that has been aroused by the epochal revolutionary events in society. Snow at Night also leaves footprints of contemporary aesthetics and the unique milieu that is derived from the composer’s background.

Angus LEE: APOCRYPHA (2018) | Notes by the composer

I. Book of Dirae

Prelude [For though that seat of earthly bliss be fail’d, a fairer Paradise is founded now...]

Deluge I [... pourtant pas plus en danger qu’une étoile dans les gueules des nuages.]

II. Book of Furiæ

Fanfare [Um der Götter Ende grämt mich die Angst nicht, seit mein Wunsch es will!]

Meditativo [Eine Welt ohne Aufruhr | Ohne Armut | Ohne Ungerechtigkeit | Ohne uns]

March [... nichts zu verlieren als ihre Ketten. Sie haben eine Welt zu gewinnen.]

III. Book of Eumenides

Epilogue [... E quindi uscimmo a rivender le stelle.]

Deluge II [... for the first heaven and first earth had passed away, and the sea was no more.]

First prized, later tolerated, finally excluded: a preliminary point of inquiry would be the question of authority: on whose authority was this exclusion proclaimed? On whose authority was (it) judged to be (only) tolerable?

Ἀπόκρυφος: to (be) hid(d)e(n) away. This rendering less favorable - less accessible - amounts to nothing less than an act of violence. A violence inflicted upon the excluded, upon those from which the excluded shall see no light of day, enchained and confined to the abyss of invisibility.

That which dis-appears, however, also leaves traces, the kind that no writing over shall erase or efface. The ex-cluded is the entire reality that encircles the in-cluded; and to those enchained, “they have nothing to lose but their chains. They have a world to win.” And they shall.

Sic mundus creatus est.

BIOGRAPHIES

Currently Professor of Music at The University of Hong Kong, CHAN Hing-yan is lauded for his subtle incorporation of Chinese elements in his compositions, which have been heard around the world at festivals such as Edinburgh International Festival, Melbourne Festival, Singapore Arts Festival, the Second Spring of the Chinese Symphony in Beijing, Hong Kong Arts Festival, Hong Kong Week in Taipei and music festivals in Amsterdam, Budapest and Canberra. Chan was awarded the “2013 Best Artist Award (Music)” by the Hong Kong Arts Development Council. He also received commendation for “Persons with Outstanding Contributions to the Development of Arts and Culture” in the Secretary for Home Affairs’ Commendation Scheme.

Through orchestral, chamber and mixed media works, CHAN Kai-young integrates nuance, relevance and resonance in music that converses with societies and cultures. He is particularly drawn to the implied musicality of Chinese texts expressed through the tonal Cantonese language. After completing his PhD in Music Composition at the University of Pennsylvania, he joined the composition faculty of the Chinese University of Hong Kong. Commissions and grants from the Research Grants Council, Composers and Authors Society of Hong Kong, and other institutions have supported his on-going projects exploring how text-setting constraints in Cantonese can be turned into creativity in contemporary music.

LIN Wei-Chieh was born in Taichung, Taiwan, and his music has been performed or commissioned by the likes of Ensemble InterContemporain, Orchestre Philharmonique de Radio France, National Taiwan Symphony Orchestra, Taipei Philharmonic Orchestra, Le Nouvel Ensemble Moderne, as well as members of Klangforum Wien, as well as upcoming performances with the Asko/Schoenberg Ensemble and Alarm Will Sound, among others. Lin has participated in, among others, the Aspen Music Festival, Académie musicale de Villecroze, Domain Forget, Asian Composers League Music Festival, and Foundation Royaumont Music Festival, as well as Manifeste/Acanthes@Ircam Composition Workshop and a resident at Cité Internationale des Arts in Paris.

Daniel Ting-cheung LO is one of the most active composers in Hong Kong. One of Lo's current compositional interests focuses on integrating music with Hong Kong literature. In 2019/2020, Lo and novelist Eva Wong were commissioned by the Hong Kong Arts Festival to create Women Like Us, a chamber opera in Cantonese. Lo & Wong would continue the collaboration in a new multimedia work The Happy Family for narration and ensemble, commissioned by Tai Kwun in 2021. Lo completed his PhD (Composition) at the University of York in the UK in 2017 under the supervision of William Brooks, fully supported by the Hong Kong Jockey Club Music and Dance Fund. Previously, he studied composition with Chan Hing-yan at the University of Hong Kong where he graduated with first class honours in 2009 and then earned an MPhil (Music Composition) in 2012.

Born and raised in Hong Kong, composer Charles KWONG's music has been featured internationally with appearances in some renowned festivals across Asia and Europe. Distinguished musicians and groups who performed Kwong's compositions in recent years include Ensemble recherche, Ensemble Intercontemporain, Orchestre Philharmonique de Radio France, Hong Kong Sinfonietta and Neue Vocalsolisten Stuttgart, among others. Kwong is appointed the Artist Associate of Hong Kong Sinfonietta in seasons 2020 - 21 & 2021 - 22. He was invited in 2020 for artist residencies at the Zurich University of the Arts and the Tai Kwun Contemporary Artists' Studio. He was the curator and composer of Our Audible City (2018 - 19), a year-long project in collaboration with the Hong Kong New Music Ensemble that explores site-specificity of music across various non-concert venues in Hong Kong. Having had his formative music education in Hong Kong and the UK, Kwong earned his doctorate in composition from The University of York under the supervision of Thomas Simaku in 2013. He also received important benefits through tutelage in recent years from Toshio Hosokawa, Francesco Filidei, Mauro Lanza, and Oscar Bianchi, among others.

Phoebus LEE received his Doctor of Music at the Chinese University of Hong Kong. His works have been presented at various international music platforms and conferences including the ACL Conference & Festival, the Chinese Composers Festival, Hong Kong Arts Festival, Hong Kong Contemporary Music Festival, soundSCAPE Festival in Italy, WASBE Conference, commissioned and performed by renowned groups and artists from England, France, Germany, Greece, Hong Kong, Korea, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Taiwan and the US. Lee is one of the council members of the Hong Kong Composers' Guild, and, while not working as a composer, one of the directors of the Hong Kong Kyudo Association.

Angus LEE is recognised as one of Hong Kong's leading flautists specialising in contemporary music performance. Alongside the Hong Kong New Music Ensemble, he has, since 2016, taken part in significant regional and world premieres at international festivals including the Shanghai New Music Week (CN), Tongyeong International Music Festival (KR), New Vision Arts Festival (HK) and the Ciclo de Música Contemporánea de Oviedo (ES). Parallel to his work as a flautist, Lee is equally lauded for his work as a composer-conductor. Having benefited from the tutelage of leading composers (among others) Oscar Bianchi, Philippe Manoury, Dimitri Papageorgiou and Yann Robin, Lee's works have been performed by leading ensembles including Ensemble Modern (DE), Ensemble Intercontemporain (FR), Ensemble Multilatérale (FR) and Trio Accanto. In 2021, he was selected to take part in Ensemble Modern's International Composition Seminar as conductor, and will lead the ensemble in premiering works by 5 young composers at Festival Cresc... Biennial for Current Music Frankfurt Rhine Main in 2022.
